February 2017

IN THE FOREGROUND is our easy access staging area for stockpiling harvested hardwood for later delivery to the local sawmill. The two-story, 10,000 square foot building in the background is the William Pierce Memorial Hall. The road to the left continues up a mountainside to the high side of our property which includes Pierce Point.

Report from the Mountain

During February, we continued with our selective harvest of timber while we wait for our West Virginia Department of Forestry permit — held up, according to the state, because of their office being tied up with the unusual number of fires being fought this season. Meanwhile, we are stacking loads for pickup and delivery to market as soon as the paperwork is complete.

Our Ford tractor has been a workhorse for this kind of work. Dr. Pierce purchased it new in 1991. Over the years, the metal canopy began to come loose. Last week it finally broke. As part of our self-sufficiency project we want to try and repair or build all we can ourselves. This has slowed some projects down while we either learn a new skill, or try to find someone who can do it that is a part of our growing local network. In this case, one of our people had a small welder so we could not only repair the canopy but strengthen it — so this problem won't happen again. We've also begun to scrap the old "guest trailer," preparing to burn or haul some of it away for recycling. Removing the dilapidated eyesore, and having already cleared all of the new trees and brambles that have overgrown the place, leaves us a lovely building site with electricity, septic, and water already available, and long views of our mountain.

Our goal this year with the farmhouse is to redo the outside. We have already repaired the roof. We repaired one of the rain gutters that was pouring water into a barrel for water collection. The problem: no plan for overflow. Now the downspout is directed away from the house and there won't be as much moisture under the house now; practically none.

Work continues on the French drain behind the gate house also. It's a tough job digging a ditch in this rocky soil by pick and shovel — and ax for tree roots. Fred Streed, who was the resident ditch engineer here and honcho of everything having to do with construction for 11 years, said he understood why pioneers kept moving west after digging a ditch or two here in West Virginia. The previous problem of surface water undermining the house will be solved by this well-designed drain that carries the surface water, and any excess water, that comes off of the roof safely away.

Work on this year's garden has also begun. This year we plan to expand the overall size to add more vegetables. We have access to a pull-behind six-row tiller which will enable us to increase the corn, bean, and potato crops dramatically. Much of what we eat daily came from our community garden last year. I haven't eaten any store-bought meat in over a month and we had corn-on-the-cob last week! The deep freeze Will and Lana Williams brought us in September made that possible.

It was 70 degrees here on February 26, extremely unseasonable for the West Virginia highlands. Our crew went into our forest and spent the entire day working on the property. What a great day! Clear skies and great company. One topic we discussed was the American Revolutionary War. The subject came up because ancestors of a couple of the men working with us first moved to the area around 1760. We discussed the small percentage of the 13 Colonies who fought for freedom — and how it is like that now; with a small, dedicated minority of responsible men and women — and how it has always been that way with revolutionary vanguards. We talked about how we might attract more quality people to our Alliance instead of lots of warm bodies, trying to be "big" — in other words, quality over quantity, with everyone understanding our Purpose. — David Pringle, Chief of Staff, National Alliance West Virginia campus

Turner Diaries CD Remastering Completed

Special thanks from the National Office to all those who have pre-ordered our new, remastered audio book edition of The Turner Diaries read by the author, Dr. William Pierce. The pre-order period has ended and regular orders are now being accepted — the CDs will be ready for shipping in a few days.

For those who sent pre-orders, we thank you for your support and appreciate your patience.

The original recordings, made by Dr. Pierce and Kevin Strom on reel-to-reel tape in 1995, had been digitized in the early 2000s, but that digitization process was primitive compared to what we are capable of today; many background noises which marred the original sound can now be removed with advanced software that has become available in recent years.

So we embarked on the process of remastering using the latest commercial software. Despite the new software's advanced features, remastering required a great deal of meticulous, manual work: Each audio anomaly or background noise had to be manually selected, then processed by the software individually, sometimes going through several iterations before the best degree of mitigation could be determined. There were sometimes dozens of these manual corrections to be made to just a single minute of the ten-hour unabridged book. We were not able, as we originally thought we would be, to apply the software to the entire book at once: If we had done so, we would have lost much of the fidelity of the source. So we did it the careful, slow, difficult, craftsman-like way — the way Dr. Pierce would have wanted it.

We are proud to offer you the result, which can be ordered online via:

http://natall.com/td

You can also order by postal mail from our address above. The quality of the completed disc is excellent: On a good speaker system, it sounds as if Dr. Pierce is with you, reading his book to you personally. There is nothing quite like hearing the man who created The Turner Diaries read it to you himself. And, by purchasing this mp3-CD (playable in the latest, modern CD players and in all computers), you will be supporting the important work of the National Alliance.

We will also be playing chapters of this amazing book from time to time on the National Alliance Radio Network too, in hopes that listeners will be impressed enough to want their own complete copy. Listen at:

Recent Items Donated

C.M., a West Virginia Alliance supporter, donated and delivered numerous needed items to David Pringle in January, including around $100 worth of well-received groceries. J.H., a long time Alliance stalwart who knew and supported Dr. Pierce going back 35 years ago, donated many items to the National Alliance and to our WV community, including a nearly new refrigerator, a generator, a riding lawn mower, numerous tools, household supplies, appliances, etc. — so many items that they are too numerous to mention! He also gave us some very nice bookshelves and valuable books that were dropped off at our Tennessee offices on the way up to West Virginia from Florida during the days February 28 to March 3. (Transporting and securing these generous gifts are two of the reasons this February BULLETIN is a few days later than usual.) What J.H. donated practically filled a 26-foot U-Haul truck. Everything will be put to good use. Thank you, sirs!

Legal Update

As the BULLETIN went into production at the end of January, the National Alliance attorney in Virginia filed a comprehensive 51-page Answer and Counterclaim to former member John McLaughlin's harassment lawsuit against the National Alliance and Chairman Williams. Our organization enjoys a strong legal position in this action and has excellent counsel who has now made it clear to the Plaintiff that he should have thought twice before allowing Garland Corse and the former NARRG attorney Dan Harvill to cajole him into being named Plaintiff in this suit against the National Alliance — the same National Alliance founded by Dr. William Pierce in 1974, and which mails each member and supporter his or her monthly BULLETIN today. The Alliance, in its Counterclaim, asks the court to reward $500,000 to us as compensation for damages caused by Plaintiff McLaughlin's outrageous breach of fiduciary duties, plus $350,000 in punitive damages for the outrageous abuses which he and his "Executive Administrative Assistant and Legal Liaison" have committed — plus any legal costs and expenses they have forced us to incur, which are substantial. The coup-plotters' scheme, working against us from three states — five if we count NARRG in Nevada and Alabama where the SPLC is headquartered — is explained in a couple of sentences on page 10 of the Alliance's Counterclaim, as follows:

> 12. In furtherance of McLaughlin's assistance to NARRG, McLaughlin unilaterally appointed Garland DeCourcy (sometimes referred to as "DeCourcy") as a spokesperson for the corporation without the proper authority of the CEO of the NA. Upon information and belief, DeCourcy has assisted McLaughlin and NARRG in its efforts to seize corporate assets of the NA; made false and slanderous accusations against William W. Williams, the CEO of the NA in order to advance her personal interests with the full knowledge and support of McLaughlin; and made corporate decisions on behalf of the NA while appearing to act as Executive Administrative Assistant and Legal Liaison of the NA while lacking the actual corporate authority to act or speak for the NA, with the full knowledge and support of McLaughlin.

There is not much activity to report in the West Virginia cases. We did manage, without an attorney, to get the NARRG losers' deceptive blog and fan page to take down their fraudulent solicitations for funds. Eventually we will be able to shut down NARRG's illegal operations altogether, since they lost their suit on every point, despite what they continue to claim on their blog and fan page.

Other than an evidentiary hearing set for some time in May, Chairman Williams' appeal of the conviction for assaulting Ms. Corse is set for the month of June. There is no date set as yet for Garland Corse's (who sometimes calls herself "DeCourcy") appeal of the ruling wherein she was ordered to return the items she had stolen.

Corse has now sunk so low that she is posting private images of National Alliance Business manager Mrs. Lana Williams (fully clothed, thanks) that were on the stolen computer Corse has been ordered by a court to return; and feeding these images and stolen private correspondence to that expert at stealing and selling stolen documents, admitted SPLC informant Randolph Dilloway, who then puts those stolen images on an anti-Alliance Internet forum — along with disgustingly salacious, libelous, and obscene remarks about Mrs. Williams and her friends and family. It is actually good that a certified traitor like the defective Dilloway is now in the same camp with NARRG, McLaughlin, Corse, and her cohabitant Bob DeMarais — it makes the real nature of the situation obvious to any observer. We have earned our enemies; we were expecting them. As the saying goes: Show me a man with no enemies and I'll show you a man who has never taken a stand.

Correspondence

Dear National Alliance: By the time you receive this letter it will be on or about the 72nd anniversary of the fire-bombing of the German city of Dresden by the British and U.S. Air Forces at the end of WWII. February 14, 1945, was the day that our own people were convinced by an ancient enemy to murder their own kind using the cruelest, most cowardly, and vicious means imaginable. Today that same enemy has a virtual stranglehold on all areas of White European and American societies and seeks the utter destruction of the White race.

In order to take our nations back and ensure a bright future for our people, there must be a focused and well-orchestrated agenda put into action by a group of intelligent, talented, loyal, and committed White men and women, whose great purpose is the survival and continued evolution of the White race. The National Alliance is the only organization that possesses this vision as its guiding principle. Therefore I humbly submit my enclosed application to be a member of your organization, requesting only that, if accepted, my official date of membership on record be 14 February 14, 2017. I will be reminded each year on that day, not of Valentine's Day hysteria, but of the tens of thousands of White men, women, and children who suffered and perished at Dresden, and also of the day I officially took up arms with those responsible few of my race who had the courage and means to actually do something to save our people. Sincerely, — M.F., Texas

Chairman Williams: Please send me 100 of our Alliance fliers, "Why They Want To Disarm You." I know that I can print copies myself — via natall.com/fliers — but any way I can put a few dollars in your hands, I am for it. I hope our super intelligent writers can update the National Alliance's valuable Who Rules America? booklet

This flier — available, along with many others, at http://natall.com/fliers — is inspiring White men and women to seek out our Alliance and join the fight. Spread the word!

[which exposes Jewish control of the news and entertainment industry — Ed.]. I understand it is a huge project but the last edition I had was from 2010, so it is outdated. We travel a lot, staying in many motels, and I need a newer edition. I have placed many a copy of Who Rules America? under Gideon Bibles. — B.M., Mississippi

Chairman Williams responds: It's regrettable that we have been unable to update and revise the Who Rules America? booklet so far. We've had a couple of false starts with volunteers, but the scope of work was larger than they anticipated. As we grow, we hope to add several editors with superb command of the English language and a thorough knowledge of Alliance ideology to our staff, to free up our Media Director for this and other very important projects.

Dear Chairman Williams, we set up at the regional gun show as usual with our National Alliance literature and books, and lots of the NA's new gun control fliers and the new "No King Over Us" flier. I talked to every other dealer at the show, gave each person one or two fliers, an Alliance business card, and let them know I would supply them with bulk fliers if they would care to have them available for future gun shows. All one hundred gun control fliers I took with me were handed out at this one event. The show's promoter didn't like the fact that I was "papering" his show, but his displeasure was selective — toward our Alliance fliers and not toward others' literature — because our content has a racial perspective. We may not be able to re-book the show in March, but will attempt to do so anyway.

We've since learned that J.M. was allowed back in for the big gun show which followed.

A donation is enclosed to add some of my strength to Alliance-building.

I was impressed by your mention in the January BULLETIN about a movie adapted from The Turner Diaries. That will be a bold move and just the thing to "put the fight back into the White man." I've seen how just the title alone of our booklet, Building a New White World, scares the timid and closed-minded away, as it should! — J.M., Iowa

Dear Lana Williams: Thank you for your invitation for me to join the National Alliance. I learned about you while listening to Mr. Strom's interview on Red Ice Radio. A $250 donation has been sent electronically for my first year's dues and a little more. I will fill out the membership application, and post it today. I'm really honored to have the possibility of being a part of the NA, and in this way being able to support your great work! It's much needed! Although it's a tough struggle, I'm convinced that we will win the war in the end! Keep up your good and important work! Best wishes to all of you in the NA. — I.Z., Norway

Dear National Alliance: I went on your Web site and saw PDF flyers to hand out. I may go to the "March4Trump" and thought it might be a good place to hand some out. I especially like the one with the three white hands. The father's on the bottom, the mother's, and baby's hand on top. It was so moving; for my stance has always been about having more and healthy White babies.

I purchased an FM transmitter for my car. It's not expensive; it cost $5.99. But I can listen to National Alliance radio through my car speakers and phone. I went to get raw milk from the cows today, quite a distance. It's a long drive but I listened to Vanessa's interesting 100 Reasons which show Leo Frank's guilt, and other programs, on the 24/7 National Alliance Radio Network (natall.com/radio). I heard Dr. William Luther Pierce talk about Poland. I wrote earlier about the Katyn Massacre. His last audio was on that. Also he mentioned the Warsaw, Poland, ghettos and the fact that Jews hysterically weep about how bad they had it — but no one talks about (my) Polish people, who had it worse. "Just the Jews" get all the attention. Jews turned Chicago into another kind of ghettos and had a close relationship with the Blacks once they drifted from the South after the Civil War. The Jews burned down Chicago, twice — these were called the "Great Chicago Fires." My Mama — who was very Jew-wise, coming from Poland — said Jews "block-bust," a term for Jew real estate agents chasing Whites out of the neighborhood by bringing in Black and Brown hoodlums. The Whites ran into the suburbs, then the Jews and their non-Whites followed. The only place left for Whites to run was the grave.

We have to save our Race. I'm so proud of what you do. I'm sure you don't get the money or rewards, but the energy of knowing the Truth should sustain you. Thank you so much for being there and for all your work. When I started, I felt like the only person on earth, with the rest of the world against me. I will try to help however I can. Faithfully, — B.N., Missouri

Chairman Williams responds: Thank you to both B.N. and to I.Z. It is such a pleasure to have two White ladies, independent of each other, on different continents, come to our Alliance within a couple of days in February. Hopefully your idealism — and your courage to support the Alliance's fight — will become contagious and spread among many more of our people, and soon!

Commentary by Chairman William White Williams

Vow Not to Compromise

Dr. Pierce warned Alliance members several times in the last few months prior to his death to stay clear of the "movement," or at least to keep our Alliance a safe arm's distance from it. In the January, 2002 National Alliance BULLETIN he wrote these words:

There are members who still have a fixation on something called the "movement" rather than on the Alliance. These "movement"-oriented members see the Alliance not as unique and irreplaceable, but merely as one organization among many, all working toward the same goal. "How much stronger our movement will be" they think; "when all these organizations are united. Now we are weak because we are divided, but if we all work together we will be stronger and more successful." These members also tend to regard anyone who sticks his arm out and shouts "White power," as a "comrade" much like a fellow Alliance member.

There can be no doubt that we are weak now compared to our enemies, but we will not become stronger by "uniting" with weak or defective organizations — and that includes virtually every "movement" group. The Alliance is not only far and away the strongest and most effective of all the organizations claiming to share our goals: It is the only organization in North America that has any prospect at all for effectively opposing the Jews and their allies in the future. I say this not to disparage any other organization or individual, but as a simple statement of fact.

The Alliance became what it is today by following its own course from its inception. It never saw an opportunity to become stronger by uniting with another organization, and it sees none now. If in the future a suitable organization with which the Alliance might unite comes into existence, then we can explore the possibilities for collaboration. That is not a likely prospect however, for the following reason: If someone decides to form a new organization, instead of becoming a member of the Alliance, it is either because he actually has a significantly different goal or ideology from the Alliance or is determined to use significantly different tactics, or it is because of personal reasons.

By far the most common personal reason is egotism: He wants to have his own organization. He would rather be a phone-booth Führer, with a letterhead, a post office box, and three devoted but mentally challenged followers, than just another member of an effective organization. In that case he will have to give his organizational efforts a try and see what he can accomplish by himself.

"I am not willing to compromise in any significant way the goals or ideology of the National Alliance."
William Luther Pierce
January, 2002

I am not willing to compromise in any significant way the goals or ideology of the National Alliance. The examples that come to mind of other organizations or individuals that had similar goals but significantly different tactics are those that were too impatient to follow a course of legality and were determined instead to move ahead faster than the Alliance by using illegal tactics. So far such a course has not been successful, and it is my carefully considered judgment that such tactics are not likely to be successful prior to a major weakening or disruption of the government.

A member who disagrees with this rather dim view of the "movement" should choose a "movement" organization and join it, or he should start his own organization, but he should resign his membership of the Alliance.

For the guidance of members, the following is the policy of the National Office governing interactions with "movement" organizations.

- The Alliance will continue to follow its own course and will act independently of other organizations.
- The Alliance will not engage in joint activities with other organizations.
- Individuals who are members of other organizations and who are prospects for recruitment into the Alliance may be invited to attend Alliance meetings or participate in Alliance activities strictly as individuals, not as representatives of the other organization to which they belong.
- The Alliance does not comment publicly on other organizations, either positively or negatively. We do not respond to attacks from other organizations or engage in feuds with other organizations. We wish them well, but they are on their own.

In evaluating prospects for recruitment, we do not disqualify a prospect simply because he belongs to or has belonged to another organization, but we usually will regard his membership or former membership in another organization negatively rather than positively and will be especially alert for signs of hobbyist tendencies.

In general, the Alliance is not competing with "movement" organizations for members. A person should join the organization for which he is best suited, and if he is at all tempted to join a "movement" group, then he probably lacks the seriousness, maturity, and good judgment expected of an Alliance member.

I can't emphasize enough that what Dr. Pierce vowed 15 years ago as his bottom line stands today with your current National Alliance Chairman. The National Alliance will stand apart from and above the greater, big tent "White nationalist movement" that is all over the board on vital issues. Many in that "movement," in fact, are hostile to the National Alliance ideology and program for various reasons, including those stated by Dr. Pierce above. We will maintain William Pierce's uncompromising hard line on the Alliance's goals and ideology, and deal with issues that impact on our race's well-being in a foursquare manner as our Founder would have had us do.

I cannot say it better than our mentor put it to us about the sort of people we want as fellow Alliance members: "I don't want 'movement' people; I want virgins." W. W. W.
